When the first display was made, occasioned by the burning out of the fuse, Chief Bensch of the department, notified the Newark Electric Light company and also detailed a fireman to go to the pole and see that no one was injured by the wire.

The Meeting of Two Of Fate's Currents.

A woman lay dying. No one was with her except her son, a boy of ten years. She looked at a shelf over a fireplace and tried to speak. The boy, knowing she wished to speak of something on the shelf, took up various articles on it, at every one of which his mother gave a negative sign till he came to a small lacquered box, at which she began to mutter. He took down the box, went to the bedside, put his ear close to her lips and tried to distinguish what she wished to say to him. But he failed. The mother died before she could make herself understood.

After all was over and the dead had been laid away the little fellow closely examined the lacquered box. It was locked, and he had no key to open it. Taking it to a lock-mith, he procured a key and unlocked the box, but found it empty.

The boy was left with nothing and was obliged to make his own living. The few articles of furniture were sold, realizing only a few dollars. His home had always been in the country, and he sought an abiding place and work on a farm.

Farmer Simpson agreed to take him. He was to do chores and such light farm work as a boy of his age might be able to do, such as feeding the stock, milking the cows and weeding. He was permitted to go to school for a portion of each day, though this was for his employer's as well as his own benefit, for little Billy Simpson, seven years old, was sent to school, and the boy was her protector over the two miles between the farm and the school-house.

And so Benny Rengeralt grew up the protector of a child who came to be a woman. Strange that her father should not have expected that the two would pass from the friendship of childhood to the love of youth. In truth, he never realized that his daughter had grown to womanhood till after it was too late. Then when he began to consider which one of the neighboring well to do farmers' sons she would take for a husband he discovered that she and Ben were welded together. They might be parted, but it would be like tearing up two clinging plants by the roots.

Nevertheless he resolved to do so. Ben was twenty-two years old and had accumulated nothing. Indeed, he had never been paid anything to accumulate. He was told to go, and there seemed nothing for him to do but get work as a farm hand wherever he might. But he had been an apt scholar and was fairly well educated. He resolved to go to the city and seek a business situation. When he parted from his sweetheart she told him that she would never marry unless at some future time she might marry him.

Five years passed. Ben was receiving a small salary. Neither he nor Belle had married, but Farmer Simpson was as inexorable as ever.

Fate works in strange grooves. While all this was passing one of her other currents was flowing on to meet the one recorded. One day a woman, seeing a red flag before a house, entered and found an auction. She bought several knickknacks, including an old lacquered box. It was coming to pieces, and she secured it for 15 cents.

Some months after this purchase one of Ben Rengeralt's friends called his attention to a personal advertisement which concerned him. It said that if he would call at a certain street and number of a certain town he would hear something to his advantage. He was naturally very much surprised and went at once to the place designated. He was received by an elderly lady.

"Are you Benjamin Rengeralt?" she asked.

"I am."

"Did you ever see that box?" pointing.

Ben looked at the box.

"No," he said. "I never saw it before."

She saw that he was endeavoring to recall something and gave him time. That quick springing plant memory had taken root in his brain, and while seconds were being ticked away it was growing. It had been excited by the box, which he had not seen for nearly twenty years. Again it stood on the shelf over the fireplace. Then he saw his mother looking toward it, her efforts to tell him something concerning it, her failure.

"Yes," he said. "It belonged to my mother. When she was dying she tried to tell me something about it, but her voice failed her before she could do so. Where did you get it?"

"I bought it at an auction, intending to use it for trinkets. But it was coming to pieces, and I tried to glue it together. Failing in this, I tried to fasten it with nails. Under the hammering it broke apart and revealed a false bottom. See."

She took out the upper bottom and disclosed a small paper book with a number printed on the cover. She opened it and showed him his name. It was a savings bank book. There were deposits entered in it, the last having been made more than seven years before. The aggregate deposits were $1990. The accumulated interest would amount to nearly twice as much more.

"It is yours," she said. "Doubtless your mother had long been saving it for you. I am glad to be the means of its return to you."

And so it was that the mother's intentions were carried out in time and when perhaps they did the most good. Ben married his sweetheart, invested his fund in business and is now prosperous and happy.

Let us see. In 1905 the city of Newark was under the management of a Democratic Board of Public Service and a Democratic mayor. It was then that the remark was made in Pittsburg that "everything was dead easy in Newark, Ohio, except the newspapers."—American Tribune.

The American Tribune was entitled to its full share of the compliment of such a remark. But the Advocate has the additional satisfaction in the fact that it was exclusively in these columns that the presumption and effrontery of the grafter were denounced. The A.-T. is right enough when it says that "deeds, not words, count with the public."

THE TRUSTS SCARED.

Will the Big Combines Be Good After Election?

When the devil is sick, the devil a monk would be.
Signs multiply that the trusts, which are robbing the American people behind the shelter of a tariff wall, are becoming "sick"—with fear. The "trusts' own" representative, Congressman Dalzell, speaking in the house of representatives Feb. 23, while protesting that he personally did not think the tariff needed revision, still believed it would be well "to recognize the claims of those who think there should be some revision." He was inclined to think that the Republican national convention would promise that the subject of revision would be considered and believed that in the event of Republican success the tariff would be revised at a special session of congress immediately following the inauguration of the new president.

Can it be doubted that this language is induced by the quakings of the trust tariff devil, who sees possible death this year in the strong and unwavering interest now taken by the people in the workings of the Dingler schedules? The people are learning that the trusts, freed by the tariff from foreign competition, extort high prices from their own countrymen, while they export and sell their products at low prices in foreign lands. In outside markets they can undersell their foreign competitors, but the home market must be exclusively theirs—to charge "all the traffic will bear."

The pinch of hard times is driving these facts home. The tariff has failed to provide work for American workmen. It has stifled competition in the home market, which was expected to insure reasonable prices to American consumers. As the people give evidence of greater interest in these things the trusts hasten to promise revision—after election. But—

When the devil gets well, the devil a monk is he.
If those who exact tribute from us through the tariff are allowed to keep possession of the government, if the stand patters have their way in the matter of nominations and at the election, will any one dare to hope for a revision that will lessen the tribute we are paying? Judging by the past, in that case there would be no revision.

FEEDING FOR MILK.

Crops That Are Considered Best For the Dairy Cow.

However good the grass, a dairy cow will give milk in greater quantities if fed something extra. Just what that feed shall be is the question, and much depends on its answer. If something green, it must be grown on the farm. If it be bran, that must be purchased at the store or mill at a considerable outlay of cash.

As a matter of economy some farmers sow several acres in corn and reap it with the binder at harvest time. Others sow molasses cane and reap that in like manner, and still others plant field peas and oats. The last named are considered the best feed for the dairy cow. The ground for oats and peas should be broken in the fall or very early in the spring. When it will do to work, sow the peas at the rate of one bushel to the acre, the oats likewise, and harrow them in carefully. This crop, if the season is favorable, will be ready to feed about the last of June. A succession of crops can be realized by sowing plots at intervals.

In its green state the feed is succulent and acts somewhat like red clover. Therefore care must be taken at first in feeding it. Lead the cows up to a good sized feed gradually, giving plenty of salt. This crop is profitable to the soil as a fertilizer as well as being the first classified feed for the cows.

A later feed is sweet corn or sorghum cane. Either of these will run up to the time of frost. Sweet corn grows quickly, and there is no better feed for milk cows. When the ears of corn have passed the milky stage, begin feeding it. This forage will increase the flow of milk very materially. Between the rows of corn can be sown the rutabaga turnips, and if the season is late they will make a good yield. They are considered fine feed for the dairy cow through the late fall and winter if mixed with grain—W. D. Neale.

Cool the Milk Quickly.

A handy arrangement for quickly cooling milk in both winter and summer consists of a large tub with a cake of ice placed in the center. Set the cans of milk around it and cover with a tight lid. The piece of ice should be placed upon three inch strips of wood to allow for drainage. You will be surprised how quickly milk will cool in this sort of simple arrangement. In the summer time it is a good thing to have this tub so placed that cold water from a spring can be run through it at pleasure.

Saving the Company.

By CARLETON HAZZARD.

Copyrighted, 1906, by Associated Literary Press.

After a long line of incompetent stenographers Bradley congratulated himself when Alice Fuller took her place at the typewriter desk, and as though by magic the crooked places were made straight.

So quietly did the girl slip into the routine of the office and so unostentatiously did she accomplish results that Arthur Bradley did not realize all that she was doing. He had only the pleasant feeling that at last the office was running straight, and, manlike, he took the credit to himself.

It had been a struggle to get the office going at all, for the firm was in opposition to the trust, and everything possible was done to break up the newly established branch office.

More than once Bradley had narrowly escaped some trap laid for him, but for every blow struck at him he gave back as good. The letters from the home office were encouraging and intimated that if he would round out the first year there would be an increase of salary as well as the present of a block of stock.

The biggest feather in his cap was when the home office turned over to him the task of securing a contract for some $2,000,000 worth of material.

"Such big contracts are usually handled from the home office," he explained to Alice Fuller as he gave her the letter with instructions to place it in the private letter file in the safe. "If they turn this matter over to me it is a sign that they have faith in my judgment. It's going to be a ticklish matter to figure on all that material at a price that will be low enough to capture the contract and still give us as much of a profit as possible."

"They probably realize that you are close to the contract, and they know that they can trust you," answered Alice. "It shows that this branch is becoming important."

She went quietly about her work, but there was a happy light in her eyes, for she was as much pleased at this sign of confidence as was Bradley himself.

Alice was not a girl of impulses, but she had come to have more than a liking for Bradley, and she took a pride in his success.

The week that followed was a busy one. Bradley figured far into the night on the problems of cost, and each morning he gave to Alice the results of his work, to be tabulated on the machine and filed in the safe until the figures should be complete. It was weary work with all the specifications and blanks, but at last the estimate was complete, and Bradley took it on to New York in person for the approval of the home office.

He was jubilant on his return. The president of the company had congratulated him on the excellence of his work and had hinted that the new London office might be opened soon with Bradley in charge.

But the jubilation was short lived, for two days later a long letter came from the New York office instructing the branch to alter the estimates in accordance with a set of figures some 10 per cent in advance of the original estimate.

"Here's a job for you," growled Bradley as he took the paper to Alice's desk. "I'll have to do as the home office says, but it's throwing away the contract and my chance of promotion."

"Are you certain that it is the order of the New York office?" asked Alice as she took up the sheets. "You know that this contract will mean a great deal to the trust if they are able to take it away from us. It means a great deal more to us to retain it."

"That's just it," complained Bradley. "They know that if we lose this contract we lose our right for an independent existence and shall have to sell out to the trust at their own price. If we get it, it will mean that we can beat them and hold our own. Yet they raise my figures."

"And it would be worth a great effort to beat us," went on Alice. "Suppose that the trust people had some one planted in the home office who could copy the figures and send them to the trust officers. Suppose, too, that they supplied the people with our letter heads and envelopes. We would be untrustworthy and chance the bid in accordance with instructions, only to find out that we had been duped after the bids had been opened and the contract awarded to the trust."

"I think you will find that they have bid only slightly lower than this, but much higher than your original figures."

"That's possible," admitted Bradley. "I'll wire the home office and find out." "And warn the traitor in the office that his plans have been discovered?"

"They will then bid below your figures and get the contract anyway. It would be best to hold on and take chances by round-off. It will be the only way to hold the contract."

"If I only could be sure," exclaimed Bradley. "But I can't act on mere guesswork." "This is something more than guesswork," insisted Alice. "In the first place, this letter is mailed from the Madison square station. That is in the building in which the trust has its main office. Our letters all come from the Wall street station, four or five miles away and nearest our office. They are using the same make of typewriter President Hammond's stenographer uses, but it is not the same machine. On the letters from our of-ice there is a piece broken from the cross of every 't'."

"I think you are right," cried Bradley as he compared two letters. "We'll pop in the original estimate, and when they come to open the bids our trust friends will have a dozen fits."

"But answer this letter and say that changes have been made in the bid in accordance with instructions and that the bid has been submitted," directed Alice. "Then the traitor will not become alarmed and notify the trust to put in the lower bid."

"You're the general," cried Bradley admiringly. "I am only the second in command until this is straightened out. Do just as you please."

That evening a letter went to the home office reporting that the changes had been made as directed, but Bradley personally took to the office of the contracting company the original bid.

Two days later a long telegram arrived from the head office demanding the explanation of the changes to which Bradley made reference. It was Alice who wrote the telegram in reply, explaining what those changes were, and who wrote the second letter declaring it to be impossible to alter the bid to the old figures, as they directed by wire.

The next morning President Hammond stamped into the office shortly after Bradley had come in.

"I came out on the fast train to see what it all means," he cried. "You have ruined the company by letting yourself be fooled in this fashion."

For reply Bradley brought out the letter he had received. It startled Hammond, for beyond question it was on the paper of the company and not on a cheap imitation. He sighed as he laid it down.

"I suppose that you cannot be blamed," he said dispiritedly, "but it means that the company is smashed by a trick of the trust."

"Not yet," declared Bradley, with a laugh. "Miss Fuller's quick eyes saw through the trick. We took a chance and put in the original bid. I think you will find that we are the lowest bidders, for the trust felt safe in keeping up their bid."

"If we win, you can have the London office next month," declared Hammond.

"Excuse me a moment," said Bradley as he slipped out to the outer office.

"It's a go," he announced beamingly.

"Miss Fuller says that she will come as Mrs. Bradley."

"Rather sudden?" asked Hammond.

"It's sudden only in the recent realization that I have loved her ever since she came into the office," explained Bradley. "It took this crisis to force the fact home."

Alice looked in at the doorway.

"The Wallington people telephone that your estimate has won the contract," she reported demurely, and to her great embarrassment Bradley kissed her under the approving eyes of the president of the company.

"We've tricked the tricky trust," he cried, "and we're going to London on our honeymoon."

"On my yacht," added the president. "We can't do too much for the girl whose clever brain saved the company. You're a lucky man, Bradley."

"Don't I know it?" cried Bradley. "I knew it first."

Lungs and Long Life.

One of the most remarkable cases of longevity on record was that of an Englishman born in 1453, whose delicate appearance made all the doctors give him up when he was in the cradle. His chest was so narrow, says the report, that he seemed to have difficulty in breathing. Well, this young moribund, condemned by the doctors to die in short order, died in 1651 at the age of 108. He saw the reign of ten kings. Scoundri Hango, consul of Venice at Smyrna, measured only fifty-seven centimeters around the chest, and one of his lungs was diseased. Nevertheless he lived to the age of 115 years. He was married five times and had forty-nine children. When he was 100 years old he got his wisdom teeth. When he was 110 his hair turned black again. At 112 his eyebrows and his beard turned black.

Lucky In One Way.

"The late Valerian Gribayedoff," said a Chicago art editor, "was one of the first American newspaper sketch artists. On that account he leaves behind him a famous name. As Gribayedoff said himself the last time I visited him in Paris, his fame was due not to his great artistic skill, but to his luck in coming first. And he added, with a laugh, that it was always lucky to come early and avoid the rush, instancing the case of a restaurant on the Boulevard, in the Latin quarter, where a young poet had a large tureen of soup spilled over his coat one evening. The waiter, in response to the savage outcries of the poet, said good naturedly: 'Oh, well, you needn't alarm yourself, sir. There's no harm done. Our soup never stains after half past 7.'"

All In Red.

The playwrights over their supper of lobster boasted. "I," said the greatest of them, with a complacent glance at the two pure pearls in his shirt front, "decreed the color of every actress' frock."

"That is carrying the regard for detail too far," said a playwright who had failed.

"Not a bit of it," said the other. "If I didn't decide on the color of the dresses the stage manager would. Why, that must always be done. Otherwise, in their overmastering desire to draw all eyes to themselves, every actress would wear bright red. In my first play the frocks were forgotten in the general excitement, and at the first dress rehearsal all six actresses came on in the discovery scene in scarlet gowns."—New York Press.

MEMORIAL

Services of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs Held Sunday Were Beautiful and Impressive.

The annual memorial services of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows and the Daughters of Rebekah of the city were held Sunday under most favorable weather conditions. The program was brief, but very beautiful in respect and memory of the departed members of both organizations. The feature of the services was the excellent and inspiring address delivered at Cedar Hill cemetery by Ivor Hughes, of Columbus, past grand master of Ohio, and supreme representative of the world. The members of Olive Branch No. 34, Newark Lodge, No. 623, Subordinates, and Mt. Olive Encampment No. 12, and the Daughters of Rebekah assembled at the lodge rooms and marched in a body to Cedar Hill, where the following program was observed:

Invocation, by Rev. G. W. Applegate.
Opening Ode.
Song, by the Quartet.
Address, Brother Ivor Hughes.
Song, by the Quartet.
Closing Ode.
Benediction, Rev. G. W. Applegate.
The entire service was in charge of a general committee of 12 members, of which H. L. Ross was chairman and George Christman, secretary. Henry Siegle was grand marshal of the day.

The graves of those members who died during the past year, were fittingly decorated and services held in memory of the previously deceased which numbers in the neighborhood of 500 Odd Fellows and between 100 and 150 Rebekahs.

The Best That Was Offered.

A prominent attorney of Kansas City succeeded in getting his client out of a bad situation by means of an affidavit, which the attorney presented in so novel a way that it was little short of masterful.

At the end of the trial the attorney was overwhelmed by congratulations from his colleagues of the legal fraternity. To these felicitations there were added those of the learned judge himself, who observed:

"A fine affidavit, that, and mighty well put."

"Well," modestly responded the lawyer, "I myself think it was rather neat. Of those that were offered me it was by far the best."

ALLIGATOR

Weighing 1200 Pounds Killed by a Newark Citizen and Several Assistants.

Mr. Matt Bausch, who is engaged in the lumbering business in Juniper, N. C., returned home Sunday for his summer vacation. Mr. Bausch relates many experiences he has had in the big Dismal Swamp. One, if not the most thrilling adventures he has had in that region was with an alligator about one month ago. Mr. Bausch, in company with a number of assistants, had started out from camp early one morning and as they were wending their way through the swamp they ran into a monster alligator. The alligator at once showed fight. He was harpooned by the men and was finally killed after a terrific struggle. Mr. Bausch brought home one of the teeth of the alligator as a souvenir. The tooth is three inches in diameter and is hollow. The alligator was 27 feet in length and weighed 1200 pounds. It was one of the largest alligators Mr. Bausch has ever seen and he has seen probably as many as any other man in this country.

AMUSEMENTS

The Auditorium theatre was crowded Saturday night when the voting was started to see which young lady clerk should have the free week's vacation offered by Manager Graham. As each one entered the theatre they were handed a card and asked to write the name of some young lady clerk and deposit it in a box which had been provided. Mr. Graham offers to the young lady clerk receiving the largest vote this week a vacation at beautiful Buckeye Lake, with room and board at the New Harris Hotel, a hotel of 40 rooms just built in the Mission style, all newly furnished, running water in each room, hot baths, wide porches and always cool and a fine view of the lake, free trips around the lake each day, band concerts, &c. This will all be absolutely free to some young lady clerk.

Votes were cast as follows: Miss Redmond 57, Miss Kittie Burch 55, Miss Della Allen 43, Miss Clara Bucy 49, Miss Moore 35, Miss Elsie Bagent 32, Miss Cecelia Porch 21, Miss White 17, Miss Cora Harding 12, Miss Lilian Rogers 7, Miss Loretta McCarthy 5, Miss Mabel Keys 3, Miss A. Denene 3. There were ten others each having 2 votes and 16 having each one.

THE FEEDER.

Professor Henry of Wisconsin places the following values on skim milk when fed with corn: When corn is worth 28 cents a bushel, skim milk fed at the rate of one to three pounds to one pound of corn is worth 15 cents per 100 pounds, but when fed in the proportion of seven to nine pounds to one of corn it is worth but 9 cents per 100 pounds. When corn is 50 cents a bushel the milk fed in the first proportions is worth 31 cents, but in the latter proportions only 8 cents per 100 pounds.

Soy Beans For Hogs.

As a grain crop to use in connection with corn for crowding the spring crop of pigs to market the soy bean is a very valuable crop. It is essentially a grain plant, very rich in protein, and while the hogs are running on soy beans they should have access to corn to balance the ration. While the corn does not contain enough protein for best results, soy beans contain more than is profitable to feed, and the combination of the two grains is therefore much better.

For each 100 pounds of weight. Of this from ten to eighteen pounds, according to the severity of the labor performed, should be grain in some form. The heavy feeding should come at night, after the long day's work is over and when the animal has time for masticating and digesting his food.

Feeding the Calves.

A Pennsylvania dairyman reports that he kept a record of eighty calves, which consumed 12,000 quarts of milk, for which he received $481, or over 4 cents a quart, and the calves did the milking. He estimates that it takes 146 quarts of milk to make a calf four weeks old, which will weigh 100 pounds if they have Holstein blood.

Experiments With Steer.

In some experiments to test the amount of feed needed to keep a thousand pound steer in condition without making him grow it was found that there was required fifteen pounds of timothy hay, twelve pounds of clover hay and seven pounds of corn meal. In other words, unless more than this amount of feed was consumed the steer would not make a growth worth considering.

Fattening Hogs After Steers.

Where cattle feeders keep hogs in cattle feed lots some protein feed should be given the hogs so their growth need not all be made from corn not used by the steers. Striking results have been secured in recent Ohio tests showing that when tankage was fed to the hogs in the form of a thin slop once a day much better gains were secured. The gains made by hogs fed tankage in addition to the corn they got were much cheaper than where no additional feed was used. The tankage used was ordinary digester tankage and cost about $38 per ton. Only about 80 cents' worth of this was fed to each hog, and the gains were over 50 per cent more than where no tankage was used.

MOORE WHIPS WHITE AND MAKES NEW RECORD Strikes Out Seventeen Lancaster Batsmen Before 1500 People Sunday--- Effective at Critical Times

First Game of the Series Goes to Lancaster Through Erratic Fielding of Newark Infield---Teams Matched for Today.

Saturday's Results. Mansfield 8, Marion 6. Marion 7, Mansfield 0. Lancaster 4, Newark 2. Portsmouth 2, Lima 1.

The hoodoo is broken at last! Pitcher "Red" White of Lancaster, who has had the Molders on his wagon all this season, was defeated Sunday on his home grounds, and by the score of 2 to 3. Fifteen hundred people saw the downfall of their idol, and they also saw "Big Frank" Moore establish a new record. Their players were the victims, and Moore struck out 17 of them. White, on the other hand, was given four strikeouts although he worked like a horse in his effort to bait the Newark players.

Both sides played good ball and neither squad had a wobble and the game was marked by sensational fielding of the hair raising sort. Although outlit the Molders bunched theirs and hit much harder when long hits were needed. Snyder was on the job for a three bagger, while Abbott connected with one of White's benders for a double. Doc also singled once.

For some reason Frank Locke failed to show up at the game and Abbott was moved into middle field by Manager Eells, and Winters was shifted into the right garden. He didn't have a chance during the entire game.

Noore pitched as he hasn't pitched all season, and as a result the Links were at his mercy at every stage of the game. Seventeen men swung wildly at his benders and struck out. Besides this, the league record, he allowed ten hits, but they were kept well scattered throughout the entire nine innings, and at critical times the outfit managed by George Fox were absolutely helpless. His support was the best and at critical times the team worked in excellent style behind him. The score:

SATURDAY'S GAME. Their inability to hit Justus was mainly responsible for the defeat of the Molders. Saturday at Lancaster, but mixed up in the game were some bad errors on the part of the Newark players.

Justus was erratic at times and gave five bases on balls, while Webb, who worked against the Mansfield team in Friday's game here for three innings, walked four. They got but six hits off the clever little sidewheeler of the Molders, but these were bunched in the third inning and gave the Links a lead that was impossible to overcome.

Smith at third had a busy time of it and out of the one putout, and the seven assists he handled he had but one error and this was not particularly costly. Murray also had a good day and the five assists he had he took without a fumble of any sort.

Newark scored in the sixth and again in the eighth innings and at no time were the Links sure of the result for too often have the Molders made a rally that carried them out winners. A fair sized crowd turned out to see the deposed leaders and the team that is making a hard fight for first division.

Gowdy got back in the game again but he did nothing with the stick and it is said his days as a hitter are numbered.

Two Double Headers. Mansfield, June 29.—A combination of hits by Mansfield and errors by Marion gave the locals two runs and he came in the last half of the ninth in the first game of the double header Sunday afternoon, but in the second game Brown was very effective with men on bases and neither Price who started to pitch for Mansfield, nor Harris, who succeeded him in the fourth, could hold the visitors down, though several of their runs were due to luck. Scores.

BASEBALL NOTES. The Cincinnati Enquirer this morning says: Bunney Pearce, who has been touring the country with the team without having a chance to break into the game determined to attract some attention Sunday, and let folks know he is in the National league. While coaching in the first game he got into an argument with Umpire Klem, who told him to hold his horses.

"I guess you're a little woozy about the crowd, aren't you, ump?" said Bunney. To which sally he drew the fierce answer, "You to the clubhouse for the rest of the afternoon."

So Bunney went over and compared notes with Harry Steinfield, the unanimous vote of the meeting being that Mr. Klem resembled panned shad in respect to eyesight and judgment.

DISGUSTED Sport Writer Attacks Newark, Marion and Incidentally Sandy Murray— Takes Sturges' Word.

Disgusted because of the article of ball put up by the Mansfield team, the sport writer of the Shield cuts loose, and instead of going into his own team, where all the trouble lies, he attacks Newark. The extreme humor of the scribbler asserts when he calls Newark "a little burg," and refers to Mansfield as a city. The funny part of his remark is apparent to those who have compared the two places or visited either of them.

Then instead of roasting Jimmie Kettler who should have been out of baseball years ago, instead of holding second base for the "fast" Tigers, and who was mainly responsible for the defeat of Mansfield the other day, he cuts loose on Sandy Murray, who is able to play rings around Kettler every day in the week. This undoubtedly is the cause of the column of the Shield that he devotes to knocking Newark and Murray.

Marion also comes in for a roast from this scribble, and yet when one considers the fact that Mansfield lost three to Marion and two to Newark on this last trip, the reason for the attack is plain. He also quotes Paul Sturges, owner of the club, as saying that he was in Newark the day Reynolds was put off the field, and that all Zeke said to the umpire was "You're a big bum!" Sturges is evidently due for a course in the night school of truthfulness, for the remarks of Reynolds on the day were heard at every part of the lot, and were of as dirty a character as can well be imagined.

AVERAGES Of Newark's Batters and Pitchers are Good and Steady Improvement is Certain.

The following table shows the batting of the Newark team for the past week. It will be seen Newark is batting in fourth place with a good chance to pass Lima as but one point separates the two teams. Marion is batting at 266; Lancaster, 241, Lima, 236, Newark, 235, Mansfield 232, and Portsmouth, 207.

Table with 4 columns: Clubs, Won, Lost, Pct. Rows for Smith, Gygil, Snyder, Murray, Abbott, Locke, Williams, Wratten, Locke, Webb.

The following table also gives the average of the pitchers in the league for the weeks just past. It will be seen that the Newark twirlers stand well up in the list. The table does not, however, cover the games of Saturday and Sunday:

Table with 4 columns: Clubs, Won, Lost, Pct. Rows for Dayton, Grand Rapids, Evansville, Terre Haute, South Bend, Zanesville, Fort Wayne, Wheeling.

Saturday's Results. Evansville 13, Ft. Wayne 1. Terre Haute 7, Dayton 1. South Bend 4, Zanesville 3. South Bend 4, Zanesville 1. Grand Rapids 8, Wheeling 2. Grand Rapids 9, Wheeling 7.

SPORTSMEN

From Uhrichsville Have Good Luck and Land Big Catch of Fish at Buckeye Lake.

A highly pleased party of sportsmen of Uhrichsville, who were returning home after two days' fishing at Buckeye Lake, were met at the Pan Handle station in this city late Saturday afternoon by the fish editor of the Advocate, who apprehended them in the criminal act of dividing their catch before they reached home. And really they had about 200 pounds of all kinds of fish indigenous to these waters.

The custom in Newark is, and it is an unwritten law, that any party that catches a string of fish and divides them up before parading the whole string through the streets, will be fined not less than $10 for the first offense, and on the second offense, the penalty is confiscation by the authorities of the whole catch.

This nefarious act happened about the time when the officers of our usually efficient police force were either going to sleep or waking up, so these gentlemen, who were in complete ignorance of the game laws prevailing here, barely escaped paying the penalty of their breach of special ordinances pertaining to piscatorial sports.

The party consisted of Messrs. D. A. Leffey, C. A. Hines, W. L. Crown, L. H. Scott, C. S. Haskins, Dwight Bricker, C. L. Hunt and H. B. Crown. They were the guests for two days of Mr. Lou Meyers, who has a cottage at the lake, and of whom the party is loud in their praise of the entertainment afforded.

EXHUMED SKELETON

One day recently our townsman, J. N. McClelland, while prospecting in a mound on Finne y Haas' farm, exhumed a human skeleton intact. The thigh bone and forearm, the shoulder blade and other parts of a skeleton were found, sufficient for any physician posted in comparative anatomy to see that the osseous structure was from a human being of small sized stature and of a previous generation, doubtless one of our red men of the forest.—Utica News Herald.

LIBRARY

Trustees Hold Business Session, Library Being Decorated—Donations of Books and Money.

The trustees of the new public library have taken several important steps toward opening the rooms. A librarian's desk and two book racks, each twelve feet long were ordered from the Library Bureau of Chicago. Each of the book racks will hold 1,000 volumes.

The large room in the Memorial building formerly occupied by Miss Wulfoop, is being decorated by the Powers-Miller company and Place Bros., and will be finished this week. There will be three rooms in the library, the general room, a reading room and a room for children.

There are already three candidates for the position of librarian, but no decision has yet been made by the trustees. When the formal opening takes place a competent person will be in charge. When the rooms are ready a book reception will take place and the citizens are urged to give as many books or donate as much money as they can.

Just now cash is very necessary as no help can be had from the city until 1909, for under the law a city cannot have a library until the library is in actual operation. Already one person has donated $200 and another $50 for the purchase of books, and every one that can is urged to give what they can.

Newark is away behind most cities for many of them have had a library established for years and the need of one in Newark has been felt for a long time. Now that the project is well under way the citizens should do their part and contribute liberally.

BEAUTIFUL SERVICES

GRANVILLE ODD FELLOWS AND REBEKAHS JOIN IN MEMORIAL SERVICES.

Loving Tribute Paid Departed—Beautiful Musical Program—"Bryn Mawr" Changes Hands.

Granville, O., June 29.—With beautifully solemn ceremonies the members of Myrtle Lodge No. 350 Independent Order of Odd Fellows, and Spring Valley Lodge 346, Daughters of Rebekah, observed their annual memorial day Sunday afternoon at the Methodist church.

The Odd Fellows and Rebekahs met at Odd Fellows' hall, and promptly at 2 o'clock headed by the Chatham Cornet band, marched to the church, being joined on the way by nearly 40 members of the choir of Trinity Episcopal church of Newark.

The procession was in charge of Grand Marshal Henry Welsch, and upon arriving at church the Odd Fellows and Daughters of Rebekah were given seats in the front part of the auditorium that had been reserved for them. The program opened with a beautiful number by the large choir of Trinity Episcopal church, Newark, which was followed by prayer by the Rev. Mr. Miller, pastor of the Methodist church.

Dr. W. L. King, who acted as noble grand, read a portion of the Odd Fellows' memorial service, which was followed by Brother John DeBow, recording secretary of Myrtle lodge, reading the names of the members of the lodge who had passed away since its institution.

Rev. Mr. Miller read the lesson of the hour. The Rev. Mr. Ramsey, rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church, followed with a beautiful and touching address. He dwelt at some length on the effects of the law of association in cementing friendship and lasting memories. "We may say and, without due consideration, believe that we love all alike, but we are mistaken. Those with whom we lived and acted are more to us than mankind can possibly be.

"God in his dealings with man uses organization as his agent. The race of Abraham was instanced, and its wonderful influence on the world's history. In that race we find the source of the Bible, the church and the Christ. The inclusion involves the exclusive; devotion to, involves separation from.

Come out from among them and be ye separate, saith the Lord." "The wise, the good, the successful have ever ought to obey the mandates. Hence families, schools, armies, parties, clans, churches, orders."

"The great secret orders, such as are represented here today, unify emotions and its expression.

"The obligations we assume in these orders, what are they? Disinterested, comprehensive solemn promises to obey the laws of righteousness—the laws of God and better laws of man. The true brother and true sister in such organizations are heroic examples of lofty ambition and consistent effort. As such they are appreciated, honored and loved. So when death comes, its pathetic interest with our nearness to our appreciation of the friends who pass from labor to rest. Character is deathless. The body dies but the moral impression we have made lives on and on.

"Shall we bid the dead farewell? Why should we? There is a good old book, revered by you and by all which says, 'Ye are come to the general assembly and church of the first-born—to the spirits of just men made perfect.'

"Bodies die, but souls live. The good, the great, will return in bodily form at some future day, and old associations will be renewed. 'They shall return in blessedness and beauty.

And youth and joy shall dawn in light again; And love more pure within our breasts shall awaken, And life shall be renewed without its pain."

Following the services at the church the Odd Fellows, Daughters of Rebekah, choir and friends repaired to Maple Grove cemetery, where the graves of the last Rebekah and Odd Fellows to pass away were covered with beautiful flowers and impressive services were held. The graves decorated were those of Mrs. Anna Constock, who died Jan. 31, 1908, and Hugh Evans, who died June 20, 1908. Mr. Evans had been an Odd Fellow since 1861.

A change of ownership of a beautiful country place was closed the last week. J. C. Campbell, president of the National Bank of Commerce, having purchased from John R. Hughes the property known as "Bryn Mawr," situated just west of Granville. It comprises something over 200 acres and is very picturesque, being situated upon the highest ground approaching the college town. This place, with its magnificent buildings, is said to be the most beautiful spot in this section of the state. It has been the summer home of Mr. Hughes for some time, but by reason of his advanced age he has found it best to remove permanently to his city home, in order to be near his children, who live in Columbus. The price for the property is said to have been about $30,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Gerlach and son son of Wheelersburg, Va., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Malone at their home on Prospect street.

MIXED BABIES

A Host of Little Fellows Born in the Winter Quarters of the Big Circus Form Strange Groups of Play Mates in the Menagerie.

Perhaps one of the most enjoyable features of the big zoological annex with the John Robinson Big Circus billed to appear here for two performances on July 4, is the opportunity afforded to witness at play the young of many of the strange animals in its long list, for the winter has been prolific in that respect, and spring finds the big menagerie the scene of much festivity on the part of the youngsters. A tiny black baby of the rare Anoa Antelope is quite shummy with the frolicsome Zebu calf and a half dozen cub lions at play never fail to draw their share of attention, while the baby monkey nestling to its mother's breast, for all the world like its little human brother makes one wonder if Darwin were not more than half right and then there is some half dozen Shetland pony colts, and the baby Emu and baby Kangaroo, until it looks as if the Stork at the big winter quarters of the show had been kept pretty busy. At any rate they form no small part of the attraction for old and young alike, and it must keep the Robinson pretty busy finding homes for all their additions when they arrive.

61ST WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

On Wednesday, the 25th of June, a very pleasant social gathering took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Humphrey, two miles from Gratiot. The occurrence was an unusual one, both from the number of guests and on account of the remarkable anniversary it was to celebrate.

At 9 o'clock the guests began to arrive, and by noon the house and lawn were filled with friends and relatives. Then a long table was sent in the yard and 154 guests partook of a most bountiful dinner.

In the afternoon the guests listened to some of the good old fashioned music that always goes to the hearts of those who hear. Elder Barker delivered a short address, recounting the events of the past 60 years and telling of the wonderful progress made by our people during that time. He closed with the exhortation that we make ourselves worthy of our country, of the age in which we live, and worthy of that other country to which we all are journeying. Mr. D. G. Hamilton was then called for, and he gave a short but interesting talk along the same lines. Mrs. Humphrey then came forward, and in words as simple as her life has been strong and calm and beautiful, told of a few of the events of her long life, and of her pleasure in having so many of her friends with them to celebrate their 61st anniversary. Among other things she said that in all those 61 years the family ties had never been broken by death. That they have five children, 14 grandchildren and 21 great grandchildren. One great grandchild died at the age of three days.

Mr. Humphrey, aged 86 years, and Mrs. Humphrey, aged 81, came to Licking county in 1865. We well might mention that Mr. Humphrey has been a faithful reader of the Advocate ever since. Since that time they have lived in their present home near Gratiot, winning the highest respect and esteem of all who know them. As one guest aptly said, "If all our people had the ability and force of character of Grandfather Humphrey, our country and state would always prosper, and we would need no laws."

Of the people who were present at the wedding 61 years ago, only three are now living: Mr. Fred Merriam of Zanesville, Mrs. Chas. Merriam of McConnellsville, sister of Mr. Humphrey, and Mrs. Silena Stanbery of McConnellsville. Mrs. Stanbery was also a guest at the anniversary.

The children are Mrs. Dr. J. B. Gratiot, Dr. J. B. Humphrey of Bristol, Ind., Mrs. Mimick of Zanesville, Mrs. Sayers of Xenia, and Miss Era Humphrey at home.

Among the guests from outside the neighborhood were: Mr. and Mrs. Wilkins of Columbus, Mr. and Mrs. Vanborn of Hebron, Mr. and Mrs. Sayers of Xenia, Mrs. Silena Stanbery and Miss Mary Merriam of McConnellsville, Mr. Thomas Humphrey of Malta, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Longhild of Newark, Col. E. B. Louhrig of Jackson, Mo.

MILLIONS

Of Pike Eggs Lost Through Inability to Collect and Care for Them.

Saint Paul, Minn., June 29.—Investigations just completed by Sam F. Fullerton, state superintendent of hatcheries, shows that inability to collect and care for the eggs deposited by pike on their spawning beds is annually costing the state millions upon millions of healthy fry, which if cared for and deposited in the lakes and streams would make enormous additions to the state's supply of game fish.

"I found a remarkable condition in home brook," said Mr. Fullerton. "This is a favorite stream for pike in the spring and flows into Gull Lake, where pike grow to exceptional size. At the mouth of the stream this spring our men found a mass of pike eggs fully six feet in diameter which had been carried down by the current and lodged in an eddy. It was a feast for the suckers and these fish were gorging themselves. Close examination showed that the eggs were already being attacked by a fungus growth and that many so affected as to be sterile and worthless.

"The big Millbrook hatchery and the new Glenwood hatchery are annually handling millions upon millions of eggs, but the state needs even better facilities. Every one of these pike eggs could have been saved and hatched artificially, and healthy fry obtained. These investigations prove that but a fraction of one per cent of the eggs hatched in the natural way, ever develop into fish. The rest were waste, eaten by coarse fish, killed by fungus growth or caught by currents and carried to waters where conditions for hatching are not favorable. Artificially hatched eggs, so our experience at the Saint Paul hatchery proves show a loss which is trifling. Probably ninety percent or better of the eggs gathered hatch and develop into good fry, which we use for stocking the lakes and streams. There is hardly a state in the union where game fish are found where these same conditions do not apply. The United States is losing millions of dollars worth of good fish every year because the eggs are not gathered and cared for. With modern methods men can hatch out an enormously greater proportion of fish eggs than are ever hatched under natural conditions."

Money in the Bank.

He used to spend just ev'ry cent On pleasure and on dress, And when it came to pay the rent Was always in distress: It mattered not how much he earned, Or how much he could get, Somehow he found it always burned, He always was in debt.

Yet, oh! though "jolly times" he had There still was many a day Of fret and worry, feeling bad, And with the deuce to pay! And when for all his money spent He nothing had to show, He thought of many a wasted cent, And wished he had gone slow!

But now he is a different man, His head he's holding high, He's living on a wiser plan, And things are not awry; No longer does he wake to rue A feeling tired and rank, He's found no pleasure's equal to A balance at the Bank.

BUCKEYE LAKE GETS EXCURSION

FIVE TRAINS HAVE BEEN ORDERED FOR COSHOCTON'S LIBRARY OUTING.

Thousands of Visitors Will Pass Through Newark and Big Time Is Anticipated.

Buckeye Lake lands the big Coshocton excursion this year, says the Coshocton Age.

The date has already been announced, Wednesday, August 12. Five trains of ten coaches each will leave the Pan Handle station.

It is likely that one train will start a New excursion, and will make all the way stations, including Franklin, Coshocton, Adams Mills and Traway.

No one has yet been named for the annual library excursion as this year. The people have taken a lively interest and have been expressing themselves to the board.

Coda Point has been having many followers and the one drawback has been the length of the trip, with relatively late return home the night of the picnic.

Myers' Lake at Canton has also had many friends.

But the general demand seemed to be for Buckeye Lake. A committee from the board visited that resort recently and was delighted with the place. Moreover, the inducements offered by the Buckeye lake resort were for more liberal than any other before the board. The board looks at the proposition with the sole view of the best results for the library and the best chance to gain money for the purchase of books.

The arrangements contemplate the running of the five trains at 30 minute intervals, and the schedule promised will lead the excursionists at the lake just one hour and a half after leaving Coshocton. The Pan Handle will run its trains to Newark station where there is a walk of one block to the trolley line. The Ohio Electric will have cars there to meet every train, the big interurban passenger cars which seat more people than a railway car.

The Electric company agrees to have ten of their big cars for every ten coaches, which will give more than ample room for each trainload. It takes one hour of a little less to make the run from here to Newark, and then 30 minutes from Newark to the lake, making a total of one hour and 30 minutes for the full run, instead of four hours.

The trip is a diversified one: an enjoyable ride, then an 11 mile trolley ride, incidentally a most beautiful and delightful one, through charming country.

At the lake there is first and foremost the prettiest body of water in Central Ohio, eight miles long and varying from one to four in width. Clear cool and sparkling.

Best of the lake and the boats there are the customary places of amusement on land an immense "figure 8," dancing pavilion, bowling alleys, baseball diamond, splendid roller skating rink, theaters, etc., etc., and a fine bathing beach. There are several hotels and many restaurants with ample capacity for serving lunches and meals. There is a fine picnic grove with tables and rustic seats, that overlook the expense of water and forms one of the most attractive points around the lake.

OBITUARY

CHARLES AUGUSTUS MEREDITH. Charles Augustus Meredith, aged 2 years, 1 month and 20 days, died on Sunday evening at the home of the parents, 595 Hudson avenue, after a short illness. Short funeral services will be held at the house Tuesday at 12:30 followed by the regular service at Fairmount church at 2:30. Interment will take place in the Fairmount cemetery.

ELIZABETH BELL GARRISON. Mrs. Elizabeth Bell Garrison, 37 years, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. G. W. Garrison, was found lying face downward on the floor of her room, dead, Saturday evening about 5 o'clock, by her father. Coroner L. L. Marnett was summoned and pronounced death due to natural causes.

The funeral took place Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the late home, the Rev. J. C. Glover, of the Presbyterian church, her pastor, officiating. Interment took place in the new South cemetery, at this place.

Miss Garrison was prominent in society in Utica and neighboring towns, and was well known in Newark, being a cousin of Mrs. O. S. Gilbert of Hudson avenue, and of Mr. Christiana Hermann, of the King Shoe company.

Her illness was of short duration, and her decidedly sudden death was a frightful shock to her family and friends. Miss Garrison was apparently in her usual health until Friday evening and Saturday, when she spent most of the day in her room. She ate her dinner in her room Saturday noon, but when her father tried to arouse her and get no answer, he forced open the door of her room and discovered that death had claimed her. It was probable that death had overtaken the young woman two hours before the discovery of her body.

Miss Garrison was born May 28, 1869. She was educated at Utica, where she attended school until the spring of 1886, when, in the following September, she went to Delaware and entered Ohio Wesleyan university taking the full literary course and instrumental music as well. She was graduated with a class of 103 in the literary department in June, 1892, and was the sole graduate in instrumental music at the same time, taking a double course.

She united with the church in the winter of 1880 and has been a faithful attendant of the church duties. She is survived by her parents and two brothers, J. R. Garrison, of Coshocton, and A. O. Garrison, editor of the Utica News Herald.

MR. JAMES MCCORT. Mr. Samuel McCort of this city, while working at his business at Elkhart, Ind., received the sad news of the death of his father, Mr. Jas. McCort of Barnesville, O. Mr. McCort went at once to Barnesville, which is the family home, and was present at the funeral which took place Friday.

Mr. Samuel McCort's sisters, Mrs. Willis, of Denver, Colo., was at the funeral and accompanied her brother to Newark, where she will remain for a few days. Mr. McCort will go back to Elkhart to resume his work the first of the week.

Here he will embark for Cleveland, crossing Lake Erie. Upon arriving at Cleveland he will at once return home by rail.

Mr. Frank Hartman, son of Mr. W. C. Hartman of this city, who left about fourteen months ago for the wild and woolly west, has returned to Newark, and is loaded with stories of the cow boy life he has been leading. He says that soon after going west he secured a good position on one of the large ranches in the vicinity of Larimer, as a range rider, rounding up cattle, and has been in the business ever since. He is a typical cow boy and has had much experience on the western plains.
